SANE program begins at CMH Emergency Services

The Emergency Services Department at CMH now has specially trained SANE (Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner) nurses who will be available to conduct examinations and take histories when sexual assault patients arrive at the ER. Another component of the SANE program includes trained community members who volunteer to be on call in order to act as advocates for sexual assault victims when they arrive at the hospital. Sweet Dreams: CMH Sleep Clinic can help you get your zzzzz's

MIKE SALZAR DIDN'T KNOW HOW BAD his sleep disturbances were until he had knee replacement surgery which required that he stay overnight at the hospital. His nurse told him that when she came into his room to administer medication during the night, she noticed that he frequently stopped breathing for as long as half a minute at a time.

MIKE SALZAR went from waking over a hundred times a night to getting a solid seven hours of restful sleep after being treated for sleep apnea at the CMH Sleep Clinic.

When Mike's orthopedic surgeon, Dr. Joseph Lemker, learned about Mike's sleep disturbances, he referred him to the CMH Sleep Clinic to undergo a sleep study. A sleep study involves spending a night at the CMH Sleep Clinic, where the participant is monitored while they sleep. Mike's overnight session confirmed that he had a big problem. While he slept, he ceased breathing 112 times, up to 30 seconds at a time. The reason? While he slept, his airway was collapsing repeatedly, preventing air from getting through. These frequent interruptions of his sleep were also causing him to leave the REM (Rapid Eye Movement) stage of sleep, an important sleep stage for maintaining good health. Interruption of REM sleep has been linked to a number of long-term problems, including heart disease, diabetes, high cholesterol and depression. Basically, if a body doesn't get rest, it can't fight illness.

Mike was diagnosed with "obstructive sleep apnea," which is treated through the use of a CPAP (continuous positive airway pressure) machine. Mike began wearing a CPAP mask each night, connected to a machine that generates a stream of mild air pressure. The air keeps his airway open, allowing him to sleep uninterrupted. (CPAP machines and supplies are available at CMH.)

Mike says CPAP treatment has made all the difference in the world; he now sleeps a full seven hours without interruption. In fact, he is so enthusiastic about his results that he's encouraging his wife to undergo a sleep study.

If you're having difficulty sleeping, waking up tired and napping during the day, talk to your physician about getting a referral to the CMH Sleep Clinic. Take the first step to once again enjoying peaceful nights of sleep that leave you feeling rested and energized for the new day.
